

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES

For the information of Members of Congress, the libraries, and any others interested in the distribution of Government publications, this bulletin has been compiled, giving as briefly as possible an outline of the development of the existing depository systems, citations of all the important enactments affecting the present distribution, and complete lists of such depositories as are now receiving publications, these lists being arranged according to the several Congressional districts in the various States, and in a separate list those designated by special enactment under the heading "By law."

The law as now in force provides for three classes of libraries in which are to be deposited certain Government publications for the use of the public.

These libraries are known in the Office of the Superintendent of Documents, where the distribution is made, by the following names:

- Designated depository libraries.
- Geological depository libraries.
- Official Gazette depository libraries.

The law requires that libraries which are constituted depositories of public documents in either of the three classes enumerated above must contain 1,000 books other than those issued by the Government; that the publications when forwarded shall be made available for the free use of the general public and must not be loaned outside of the institution nor disposed of, except as the Superintendent of Documents shall direct.

DESIGNATED DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES

Designated depository libraries are the most important of the three classes, as they are authorized to receive copies of every publication printed by the Government and "made for distribution." The average annual distribution to such libraries is about 1,000 books and pamphlets, which would require nearly 50 feet of shelf space a year to accommodate them.

The designated depository list comprises at present by law the following-described libraries:

All State libraries.....	46
All Territorial libraries.....	4
One library for each Congressional district, to be designated by the Member from that district.....	391
One library to be designated in any part of the State by each Senator.....	92
One library to be designated by each Delegate in Congress in any part of a Territory.....	4

The following libraries have been added to this list by special legislation:

The libraries of each of eight of the Executive Departments in Washington.....	8
The libraries of the United States Military and Naval academies.....	2
The library of the Philippine government.....	1
The libraries of the land-grant colleges.....	67

The total number of designated depository libraries is therefore 615.

A library can not be removed from this list except at the commencement of a Congress (Rev. Stat., sec. 502, p. 83), or for failure to meet the requirements of the law.

By redistricting in several of the States certain libraries have been thrown out of the districts in which they were originally designated. A general revision of this depository list was made when the land-grant colleges were added by the act of March 1, 1907, and all libraries assigned to the districts in which they are at present located. This will explain the fact that depositories are accredited to certain districts as designations of Members who represent other districts.

Before the establishment of designated depositories, or any systematic methods for the distribution of public documents, special acts were passed at various times providing for the printing of a sufficient number of copies of the public journals of the Senate and House of Representatives for distribution to the executives of the several States and each branch of the State and Territorial legislatures. Provision was also made at times for supplying these journals, the acts, and sometimes the documents and reports, to each university and college incorporated in each State, as well as to the incorporated historical societies throughout the country.

During the Thirteenth Congress, second session, December 27, 1813, a resolution was adopted embodying these provisions which had heretofore been covered by special legislation, and not only directing distribution for a Congress, but "for every future Congress." Two hundred copies in addition to the usual number was the limit named for documents, and this of course was more than sufficient for the needs at that early day.

By joint resolutions approved July 20, 1840, and April 30, 1844, the number of copies of journals and documents printed was increased to 300.

A resolution of January 28, 1857, as amended by resolution of March 20, 1858, was the real basis of the institution of depositories. By these provisions the journals and documents which up to that time were deposited in the Library of Congress for distribution by the Librarian, and 250 copies of those delivered to the Department of State for distribution by that Department to colleges and other literary institutions, were transferred to the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior "for distribution to such colleges, public libraries, atheneums, literary and scientific institutions, and boards of trade or public associations as may be designated to him by the Representative in Congress from each Congressional district and by the Delegate from each Territory in the United States."

The following February, at the second session Thirty-fifth Congress (February 5, 1859), an act was passed providing for "keeping and distributing all public documents" (11 Stat. L., p. 379). This act charged the Secretary of the Interior with "receiving, arranging, safe-keeping, and distribution" of public documents "of every nature," already or hereafter directed by law to be printed or purchased for the use of the Government, "except such as are for the special use of Congress or the Executive Departments." It also empowered him to remove from the Congressional Library and other places all accumulations of books, journals, etc., and appropriated $22,000 for the purpose. He was directed by the act to keep accurate statistics of the receipt and distribution of all books.

Section 5 of this act further amended the resolution of January 28, 1857, by providing for the designation of a library by each of the Senators, and directing that the distribution should be made first to such States as had not yet been covered by distribution, and that in the future the distribution should be kept equal in each Congressional district and Territory.

All the books, maps, charts, etc., heretofore deposited in the Department of State were also turned over to the Secretary of the Interior.

The act of February 5, 1859, was in force without amendment until March 2, 1861, at the Thirty-sixth Congress, second session, when a long act to amend was passed (12 Stat. L., p. 244), the most important feature of which as affecting general distribution was contained in the first section, which gave the Secretary of the Interior the right to designate libraries to receive publications of which the edition was not sufficient to supply the regular depositories to be named by the Senators and Members. His power of selection was limited, however, by a proviso in section 2, which stated that in future the public documents to be distributed by the Secretary of the Interior should be sent to the institutions already designated, unless he should be satisfied that any such institution was no longer a suitable depository for the same. This act also contained a clause repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with its provisions.

Upon the basis of these acts the Revised Statutes were compiled, and chapter 7, sections 497 to 511, pages 82-85, contains all operative provisions reenacted at that time and superseding all former enactments.

No legislation can be found prior to that contained in the general printing act of January 12, 1895, affecting the State and Territorial libraries, and it is thought that it became customary to send documents regularly to these libraries, under the discretionary powers vested in the Secretary of the Interior, which would account for their appearance on the depository list many years prior to 1895.

GEOLOGICAL DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES

The provisions of a joint resolution approved March 3, 1887, authorized the naming of two libraries in each Congressional district by the Representatives from such districts, respectively, and two by each Senator or Delegate, which libraries were to receive the publications of the Geological Survey.

Section 79 of the act of January 12, 1895, doubled this allotment, as stated in Joint Resolution No. 19, approved February 26, 1896. The result of all this legislation is a list of 1948 libraries.

The libraries now on this list are not thought to be representative and are, in many instances, not now in the districts in which they were originally designated and to which they must remain assigned, as the restrictions of the law prohibit their removal after once being designated, except at their own request or if they cease to comply with the requirements.

To these libraries are forwarded only the monographs, bulletins, and folios of the Geological Survey—from 50 to 75 publications each year.

OFFICIAL GAZETTE DEPOSITORIES

By the provisions of a paragraph of section 73 of the general printing act approved January 12, 1895, one copy of the Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office is furnished to each of eight such public libraries as may be designated by a Senator, Representative, or Delegate in Congress.

This publication is expensive, both as to its compilation and manufacture, and should be sent only to such libraries as have special need of the information which it is designed to supply.

The Official Gazette is published on Tuesday of each week by the United States Patent Office, in pamphlet form, comprising upward of 325 pages. Each number contains the text of the first five claims and illustrations of all original, reissued, and design patents granted during the week; illustrations of the essential features of all trademarks published and a list of those subsequently registered; a list of prints and labels registered; disclaimers filed, and an alphabetical list of the patentees and inventions; also decisions of the Commissioner of Patents and of the United States courts in patent cases.
